COMPANY RULES AND REGULATIONS

The following Rules and Regulations shall apply to all employees of the Company

- Professional Conduct Employees must maintain professional behavior, discipline, honesty, respect, and cooperation with management and team members. Any misconduct, disrespect, harassment, or behavior that negatively affects the company's work environment may lead to disciplinary action.
- Working Hours and Attendance Employees must report to work on time and remain available during official working hours. Late coming, early leaving, frequent breaks, or irregular attendance without approval may result in disciplinary action. Employees must inform their reporting manager in advance regarding any delay or absence. Regular attendance and punctuality are mandatory.
- Mobile Phone and Personal Account Usage Personal mobile phones must not be used unnecessarily during working hours. Personal email, WhatsApp, Instagram, Facebook, YouTube, and other social media or entertainment platforms must be used only during breaks or for urgent personal matters. Employees must not use personal accounts or devices to copy, store, transfer, or share company information, source code, customer data, credentials, or project files. Excessive personal phone usage during working hours may result in disciplinary action.
- Leaving the Workplace Employees must not leave the office during working hours without prior permission from the reporting manager or authorized management. Permission must be obtained before leaving for personal work, appointments, or any other reason.
- Paid Leave Policy Employees are eligible for up to 10 paid leave days per year, subject to company policy and applicable law. Planned leave should normally be requested at least one week in advance. Emergency leave must be communicated to the reporting manager as soon as possible. Leave taken without approval may be treated as unauthorized absence.
- Unauthorized Absence and Job Abandonment Employees must not remain absent without informing management. Suddenly stopping work, refusing to communicate, abandoning assigned projects, or leaving the company without following the required process will be treated as serious misconduct. The company may issue notices, take disciplinary action, and pursue lawful recovery or other legal remedies where applicable. Employees are responsible for completing their assigned work and maintaining communication until their official release.
- Resignation, Notice Period & Salary Increment Policy Resignation must be submitted in writing to management. Verbal resignation, messages sent only to colleagues, or sudden non-attendance will not be considered completion of the resignation process. The required notice period is 45 days. Employees must serve the complete notice period unless management provides written approval for an earlier release. During the notice period, employees must maintain attendance, complete assigned responsibilities, and support the handover process. If an employee leaves without serving the required notice period, the company may seek compensation for the unserved period, up to an amount equivalent to 1.5 months of salary, subject to the employment terms and applicable law. Any recovery or adjustment must be legally justified, properly documented, and carried out in accordance with applicable laws. If an employee resigns within three (3) months from the date of receiving a salary increment, the employee will be considered for salary calculation based on the salary applicable immediately before the increment for the applicable resignation/notice-period settlement, subject to the terms stated in the employee's appointment/increment letter and applicable law. Where the applicable written terms and law permit such treatment, the salary increment will not be considered applicable for the relevant resignation/notice-period settlement if the employee leaves within the specified three-month period. Employees must continue their assigned duties until formal release is approved by management and must cooperate with all exit and handover requirements.

- Minimum Service Period & Employment Documents For Freshers / New Employees: A fresher or new employee is required to complete a minimum of one (1) year of continuous service with the Company. If the employee resigns from or leaves the Company before completing one (1) year of continuous service, the employee may not be eligible for an Experience Letter or other Company-issued experience documentation, subject to applicable law. For Experienced Employees: An employee joining the Company with prior professional work experience is required to complete a minimum of six (6) months of continuous service with the Company. If the employee resigns from or leaves the Company before completing six (6) months of continuous service, the employee may not be eligible for an Experience Letter or other Company-issued experience documentation, subject to applicable law. The applicable minimum service period must be completed before voluntarily resigning from or leaving the Company for eligibility under this Company policy. The issuance of an Experience Letter is also subject to completion of the required exit formalities, proper handover of assigned work and responsibilities, and compliance with applicable Company policies. Salary slips, wage statements, and other employment records that the Company is legally required to issue or maintain will be handled in accordance with applicable law. This policy does not authorize unlawful withholding of any statutory or legally required employment records.
- Training Period and Training Costs During the training period, employees must complete assigned learning activities, development tasks, project work, and assessments. If an employee leaves the company within six (6) months after completion of the training period, the employee may be required to pay or reimburse the applicable training fee or reasonable and documented training-related costs, as specified in the applicable written training agreement and permitted by applicable law. Employees leaving during the training period may also be required to compensate the company for reasonable and documented training-related costs, where permitted by applicable law and company terms. Employees must not leave training or assigned work suddenly without informing management and completing the required process.
- Handover of Work and Responsibilities Before leaving the company, employees must:
- Complete all pending assignments.
 - Hand over source code and project files.
 - Provide proper project documentation.
 - Share authorized credentials and deployment information.
 - Provide database details and technical information related to assigned projects.
 - Complete client-related handover wherever required.
 - Provide proper knowledge transfer to the assigned employee or team.
 - Cooperate until the handover is reviewed and accepted by management. Incomplete or improper handover may delay the exit process and may lead to appropriate action.
